[Sterling, Mass.] The writer deplores the attempts of certain individuals to represent themselves as Abolitionists when they were in fact pro-Slavery partisans. Discusses his early preaching experiences, and tells about one of his first anti-Slavery sermons. Says that Stowe, Vermont was a"nest of pro-Slavery men". Thinks that the Unitarians are missing a great opportunity in the Temperance cause.

To Robert Purvis

«Liberia» Says that he "is considered dangerous to the successful operation of the «American Colonization?» society." Tells of an attempt by a local official to compel the writer to dissolve his partnership with one R[usswurm.]? If the Colonization Society continues to pour in immigrants at the usual rate, great suffering will result. There is a great deal of sickness already. The Society is very hostile to him. "I do « ? » assure you that there are a great many contemptible scoundrels here." The writer will leave Liberia in the Spring.

Criticises one Russwurm's conduct of the Herald (a local newspaper?). Describes the ruler of Liberia as a libertine. The Colonization Society has cut off his income. Is sending a box containing the bones of an orangutan and a box of insects for Dr. McMurtrie. Will send native curios. Mentions Americans who have died. "This country is peculiarly hard on white as well as col'd people ..." Sends messages to the Purvis family. To Joshua Coffin

.Monrovia, (Liberia). Is deeply gratified at receiving a letter from J. C. Is happy to hear that he has moved to Philadelphia and much surprised to learn of the change in public sentiment toward the colored people. Refers to the "late riots." Mentions his poor health. "... the climate is pestilential." Food is scarce and high-priced in Liberia. With slave labor, it might be possible to cultivate coffee and sugar cane successfully, but not much could be done with free labor. Expects to return to the U.S. shortly.

The writer tells how, having protested to a lady at the impunity of the mob, she received the reply that "some of the most influential people in town as well as the [illegible]istrates were among the mob." The writer, who does not beli[illegible] the "singular stories" told about Lovejoy, wishes to get acquainted with him. She opens
